Mrs. Nellie M. Hobbs, wife of Farnum T. Hobbs, died suddenly Wednesday evening, Dec. 9, at her home on Wheeler St. About half past seven, while Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs were sitting in their sitting room, a shot fired from an air rifle in the hands of some boys came through a window in the kitchen, cracking the large pane into several pieces. Mrs. Hobbs had been subject to heart attacks, and faint at the time she was struck by the attack, from which she did not rally, dying within an hour.

Mrs. Hobbs was a native of Waterville, born August 9, 1855, the daughter of Wm. and Maria (Sawyer) Stevens. She and Mr. Hobbs lived for a long time at Berlin, N. There was a large sale of fancy articles, aprons, candy, home cooked food and grab articles. A table of water colors done by Mrs. Zilpha Plummer was an attraction. On Thursday evening the patrons were entertained with selections on an Orthophonic Victrola from the V. H. Wheeler Co.

More Autos Examined

All Ford Cars—One Impounded, Four Examined
One automobile has been impounded and four examined with two positively identified as stolen in the week's campaign. The search has been conducted in Bethel and East Stoneham, by Philip Wheeler of the Insurance Detective Agency and State Police George Wood, Oxford, and State Police Eugene Stevens, of Norway.

The work is hindered by the snow storms that delay travel on country roads while inefficiently driving many automobiles into winter storage. This slows down examinations and causes no little trouble for owner and inspectors. According to Mr. Wheeler, the work in this section of Oxford County may continue some time.

All the cars inspected the past few days are Fords, with only one impounded at the Ripley & Fletcher Co. garage, South Paris. This car was turned in by Fred Martin of Oxford, being identified as belonging to Albert Gunkle, 585 Barston St., Boston, and stolen July 13, 1926.

Several Fords examined the past week and present owners are:
Fred McKee, East Stoneham, sedan.
Eugene McKee, East Stoneham, sedan.
V. H. H. Wheeler, Bangor, coupe.

According to the records, the Littlefield coupe was stolen in Boston, August 6, 1925. The Evans car, according to the officers is owned in Boston and stolen July 19, 1925.

This is another chapter in the story of the John A. Ripley transactions involving Frank B. Coffin of Berlin, N. H., who are alleged to have sold stolen cars in Maine as "repossessed." Baldwin is under bonds on an indictment of the federal grand jury and Coffin is held charged with conspiracy.

A peanut hunt during the social hour produced lots of fun with Mrs. Bessie Pierce the winner for discovering the greatest number of nuts. Mrs. Wiggins escaped the consolation prize. Light refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Maudie Deacon, Mrs. Edna Deacon, Mrs. Louise Wiles, Mrs. Lucy Dow, Mrs. Bella Fletcher and Philip F. Stone.

Obituary

Charles W. York
Acute indigestion shortly before ten o'clock, Thursday evening, Dec. 2, brought on angina pectoris that caused the death of Charles W. York of Norway. He appeared in the best of health early in the evening and assisted in carrying food upstairs to his apartment over L. J. Brooks' store. He was stricken early, but seemed to be relieved soon after the arrival of a physician and conversed with those present. The end came unexpectedly, without warning while the physician was preparing to leave the room.

Mr. York was born in Greenwood, Oct. 15, 1860, son of Willoughby and Nancy Jones. He resided in the York family for many years and was an expert with wood working machinery. Mr. and Mrs. York moved to Norway some four years ago and had been employed at the C. B. Cummings & Sons Co. mill to the time of his death.

The deceased was a member of the Masonic lodge at the Odd Fellows at Norway and the Norway Second Congregational Church.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Rose York, two daughters, Mrs. Win. H. Knight of Norway and Mrs. Edward Jackson of North Waterford, and one sister, Mrs. Lucy Kilgore, of Norway.

Rev. Chester G. Miller

Community Called to Mourn the Loss of a Leader After Thirteen Years of Service in Our Midst

Rev. Chester G. Miller, pastor of the Norway Universalist church for the past thirteen years, passed away, Thursday evening, Dec. 9, at 6 o'clock, at his home at South Paris. Mr. Miller was stricken with an acute attack of pneumonia, Sunday night, last week, and as his health had not been the best for some years, his death was expected. The cause of death was heart exhaustion. Mr. Miller had lived an interesting life and has had wide experience in life as well as in the pulpit. He was a native of Elkhardt, Indiana, born Dec. 3, 1866, the son of Milton B. and Mary E. (Gore) Miller. Shortly after his birth the family moved to Astoria, which state was his residence for over twenty-three years, sixteen of which was passed in San Francisco, where he was educated in the public schools. Private instruction in music and other courses followed, supplemented with extensive travel in the United States and on the West coast of Mexico, Central and South America.

At the suggestion of Rev. Dr. Everett L. Conger, of Pasadena, he entered the Divinity School of Tufts College, and was ordained a minister of the Gospel, that institution June 15, 1898. He settled in western New York and in Feb. 1899 married Edith G. daughter of Mr. Warren B. Mitchell of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. In 1904, after his marriage, he pastored at St. Paul's Universalist at Jamaica Plain, Mass., he accepted a call to Portland and served there five years, closing his pastorate somewhat broken in health.

Following a trip to the Pacific coast, he accepted a call to the South Paris church, and the first of January 1909 he commenced his pastorate there. In 1913 he was called to the First Universalist church in Norway, where he remained for twenty-two years he preached in summer pastorate during his vacation, with twenty-four in the winter. He was in Bryant Pond, eleven at Rumford Falls and eight in Andover. He was in constant demand for weddings and funerals, many times had to travel a radius of 35 miles. His health improved after a few more special addresses, Memorial Day services and Baccalaureate sermons.

Before entering the ministry, Mr. Miller was second assistant librarian of the Mechanics Library at San Francisco, the largest library at that time, west of the Mississippi River. He was a journalist in Southern California and connected with the advertising department of the Mount Love R. K. He made a specialty of the South Paris church, and period and wrote articles and published a book on the subject. He also lectured on various topics, making his first public appearance in the lecture series at the Pasadena Universalist church. Since entering the ministry he served for eight years as secretary of the Boston Universalist Ministers' meeting, was associated with Rev. O. H. Shinn in the founding of the First Beach Park summer meetings; was president of the Ministers' Institute at the time that organization was merged with the First Church of Christ, and he issued pamphlets on Universalism and compiled, in association with I. Allen Shaukey, son of the great Evangelist, a "Book of Old New England." Mr. Miller resigned his pastorate with the South Paris church in May of this year and had given his whole attention to the study of the Bible and to his family, as far as he has had time. He was making a systematic canvass of the parish. He had been especially happy in the work of visiting the children of the work up this winter. Mr. Miller loved nature and carried out extensive farming operations in spare time.

He leaves this widow, Mrs. Edith Miller, a daughter, Mrs. H. H. Hays, a graduate of the Philadelphia School of Design for Women; Alan Conger, employed by Ripley & Fletcher, South Waterford; and John Beach, a student at the Tufts Divinity College.

The funeral will be held at the Universalist Church, Monday afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

AUTO SALESMAN INDICTED

John A. Baldwin of Boston has been indicted in six counts, charging a violation of the Dyer Act. The indictments were brought by a federal grand jury at Boston on Friday. On another count Baldwin and Frank B. Coffin of Berlin N. H., were charged with conspiracy. The grand jury charged that Baldwin took automobiles stolen in Massachusetts, to Maine and New Hampshire and that Coffin received and sold them. Baldwin is the head of a ring engaged in interstate traffic.

Automobiles seized in this vicinity have been traced back to the ring. Whether or not the last owners can recover the amounts paid Coffin or Baldwin is a pertinent question that the losers are passing on to legal counsel.

ARTIST LECTURES IN BOWDOIN

Douglas Volk, a regular summer visitor, making his headquarters at Lovell, will be among the lecturers at the Bowdoin Art to be held at Bowdoin College next Spring from May 2 to 13.

Among the distinguished works of Mr. Volk is his recent portrait of a rumble table, which has been widely exhibited. His work hangs in the leading galleries of America, and include portraits of King Albert, Lloyd George and the queen, which has been widely exhibited at Washington.

Each lecturer, on the morning following his lecture, will give an informal conference, open only to Bowdoin undergraduates.

W. C. T. U. MEETING

The November meeting of the W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Mary Chase, Paris St., who entertained for Mrs. Swan, being unable to have it because of sickness. Not a baker's dozen present, but a pleasant meeting with Christmas verse thoughts, and quotations and a story on Christmas, after a short business session. Next meeting will be January 13, with Mrs. Salsbery, Winter Street, as hostess. Thoughts and plans for the New Year.

Only one sleigh was observed Monday morning, after a fall of some eight or ten inches of snow. The stuff was the dry kind and not made to sustain runners, but just right for the wind to pile into drifts.

From a kind-hearted stockbroker: "Children handle the boys and cause breakage. The boys are the cause of the loss. This is about all the Christmas thrill some of the poor youngsters have. They will never forget that privilege is the last we can give them."

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Shepard and daughter, Mary, are in Boston, for a week.

Comedy and Pathos in the Musical Comedy "The Rose Girl"

The pleasing musical comedy, "The Rose Girl," a Philbrook production, entertained at Norway Opera House, Tuesday and Wednesday evening as a benefit for the Norway Athletic Association.

A cast of nearly eighty people under the personal direction of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Philbrook sang and danced besides putting across a good brand of comedy and bits of clever dramatic action.

As the story goes, Jacqueline Bremer, a waitress is deeply in love with Jerry Joyce, manager of the Cafe where she is employed. Blind to the fact, he bestows his affection upon Madelyn Travers, the cashier. On the eve of his wedding, his fiancée drops him without warning for Wallie Barnes, son of the theatrical manager for whom she is working. "Jac" is a waitress in a cafe, and Jerry is a manager. The lumbie waitress inherits a small fortune, purchases the Cafe, which is to be taken for debt and turns the whole property over to Jerry. Discovering his love for the waitress and benefactress, Jerry for the final climax and all ends well.

A vein of comedy crops out at every turn. There are many witty lines, but for the most part, the comedy is of the Swiss nobility, Lizzie McGillivray, a sporting domestic and Chuck Magee, a "hard boy" from New York, provide a bag of laughs with keen repartee and eccentric dances.

The name Samuel means "asked of God." He was given to Hannah in answer to her prayers. In connection with her asking this gift from God, she vowed to give him to God. He was to be a Nazirite all the days of his life.

II. Samuel Given to the Lord (1 Sam. 1:24-28).

For a time he was cared for by his mother in the home. The best teacher and teacher for a child is his mother. According to her word when she asked the Lord for this child, at an early age she took him to the sanctuary and gave him over to the charge of Eli, the priest, to minister in the sanctuary.

III. Features of Israel's History in This Period (2:12-20).

1. The demoralized priesthood.
(1) They were actuated by greed (2:12-17).

It was God's will that those who ministered at the altar should live of the things of the altar, but they broke through the divine regulations touching this matter, even to securing their selfish ends by force.

(2) Gross immorality (2:22).

The courts of God's house were thus polluted. The condition of the nation was most appalling. Degradation and ruin follow rapidly when God's ministers are under the sway of lust and greed.

2. An alienated people (2:30-32).

Their sins separated them from God. God's holiness is such that those who practice sin are alienated from Him.

3. The cessation of divine revelation (2:1).

The Word of God was precious in those days. "There was no open vision." This shows that God was silent. The message from the Lord was more a memory than a present experience. The same thing in principle is true of the individual life today. Some who once enjoyed fellowship with God no longer hear His voice speaking to them.

IV. God Called Samuel (3:2-10).

In striking contrast with the degeneracy of the nation, we have before us the beautiful life of Samuel. Dwell within the sacred courts and ministering before the Lord with Eli is the innocent Samuel who is become the savior of his people. In Samuel we have a striking pattern of child religion. The Lord gave him in answer to Hannah's prayer. From his birth he was dedicated to the Lord. While quite young his mother took him to the sanctuary of the Lord where he served and slept. Two traits in Samuel's character stand out in this call, namely, his cheerful obedience to the Lord's call and his surrendered will. He expressed his willingness before he knew what was required. He did not inquire what was wanted and then let his obedience depend upon it. He knew the Lord knows what is best and willing to yield glad obedience to His command.

V. Samuel's First Prophetic Message (3:11-18).

Up to this time Samuel obeyed the one who was over him, but the time had now come when he must directly hear and obey the Lord. The first message entrusted to him was a most terrible one. To deliver it was a most trying task. He hesitated to tell it to Eli, but when pressed by him he manifested the true courage which was lying back of his fear. It must have been a bitter experience to Eli to see Samuel recognized and himself passed by, but he was submissive. He knew that the sight was just. He could not fail to interpret it thus in view of the appearance of the man of God to him (2:27-28). This fearful visitation upon Eli's house was due to the sins of his sons. He was held accountable for not restraining them.

VI. Samuel Established in the Prophetic Office (3:19-21).

"And Samuel grew and the Lord was with him and did let none of His words fall to the ground and all Israel from Dan even to Beersheba knew that Samuel was established to be a prophet of the Lord."

Life

Life is a constant war, therefore it should be a constant prayer.

Disadvantage of Delay.

"Didn't you get any letters at all?" asked James's mother when he returned from the postoffice.

"No, mamma," he replied soberly.

"Next time you'll have to send me earlier, 'cause when I got there they was all gone."

A Flit Flapper.

"What's your favorite hymn?" one of those inquiring reporters asked a flapper the other day.

"I've got three or four," she answered promptly, "but I think I like Harry the best."

Oxford County's Planning Meetings

Twenty-Two Communities Make Plans for Annual Meetings

Twenty-two Oxford County communities are making excellent plans for holding their annual meetings, commonly known as "planning meetings." These meetings will be held mostly in Grange Halls and will be all day meetings in the majority of cases. These men and their wives and friends will gather for a profitable day of enjoyment and to consider means of carrying on agricultural extension work in their home communities. Practically all of the dates for the meetings have been approved and from written information received from the communities every community is planning on a local entertainment from 10 a. m. to 12, which will bring out local talent. The entertainments will consist of readings, solos, community singing, instrumental numbers and farces. A jolly time is predicted and a big attendance is expected.

Already Woodstock has held their planning meeting. Twenty-eight were present, which is a large attendance. A splendid local program, consisting of musical numbers, readings, and community singing featured the meeting, also reports of project leaders.

A Word With the Old Folks

Elderly People Are Learning Importance of Good Elimination.

IN the later years of life there is apt to be a slowing up of the bodily functions. Good elimination, however, is just as essential to the old as to the young. Many old folks have learned the value of Doan's Pills when a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys is required. Scanty or burning passages of kidney secretion are often signs of improper kidney function. In most every community are scores of users and endorses who acclaim the merit of Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

Seven Greatest Characters of the Great World War

The writer has not given this subject the study it deserves and might change his statements as to some of the characters mentioned.

By (Chalmers), in his "Six Greatest Characters produced by the Great World War," names two—Foch and Hindenburg—strange enough for what they did not do. Foch for not invading and laying waste the cities and towns of Germany and Hindenburg for not creating a revolution after he was elected President of the German Republic, and changing the government to a monarchy.

It is quite certain that Foch could not have done this, had he so desired, of which there is not the least evidence. Neither England nor America would have allowed her sons to be sacrificed in a useless struggle and sacrifice of life, for French revenge. Too many previous lives had already been sacrificed. Every nation was thoroughly tired of the war. The assistance of Great Britain and the United States were indispensable to a continuance of the strife.

As to Hindenburg, it is not certain that he could have restored the monarchy had he desired. Everything goes to show that he deemed a republic, after one was established, the best government of the country.

And it is quite certain that the two greatest characters in that war were what they did. To me Hindenburg is the greatest military man. Twice the Russian Russians under their superb military chieftain, Grand Duke Nicholas, were pressed out of Prussia and Austria, while at the same time the front lines in France and Belgium were held against the allied forces. Indeed, it may be said that in each case, had not the Russians made these invasions, Hindenburg would have broken through to the sea. There has been nothing like the engine of force he was the master spirit of.

Foch was undoubtedly a great military genius. He came into command of the allied forces at a time when a supreme leader was needed. He filled the bill. Numbers of "seasoned soldiers" were on his staff and in the trenches, and Bulgarians, Turkey and Austria, having sued for peace, Germany had to give in. The German army was in the trenches when the white flag was displayed, Nov. 11, 1918.

Grand Duke Nicholas seems to be the third greatest general in that war. Twice the Russian armies he had organized and can be held prevented the Germans from reaching the sea.

The fourth on my list was Lord Kitchener. He it was who organized the English troops to be fit for battle. He had a brilliant career before this war. He went into the North Sea to inspect the English fleet and lost his life by the blowing up of the vessel he was on.

The fifth on this list I place Admiral Tirpitz. He was a great naval commander. The reason he did not make a better showing against the English fleet was that he did not have war vessels enough. The English war ships outclassed the German, especially after the United States got into the war.

I put two civilians in this list; Clemenceau of France and Veni Zelos of Greece. No one in these countries could have taken the place of either. All the other civic leaders in the allied nations seem to have been of mediocre ability. Take Lloyd George, Premier of the English ministry, for instance. What leading statesman in his position could not have done as well as he in that position? And this can be said of them all. In fact, in some cases, others might have done better.

Leaf Mold Possibilities

Can Be Found in Any of the Northern New England States, Says Prof. F. E. Mitchell of Alton, N. H.

Editor Norway Advertiser:

In your issue of November 26, under the caption, "Fortune in Leaf Mold," you published something that has real value. This article, as written, conveys the impression that the deposit found on the farm of Mr. H. C. Grant at Kingsboro, New Hampshire, is something out of the ordinary, as it is nothing of the kind. There are undoubtedly many hundreds of acres of similar and equally rich deposits to be found in the State of Maine.

They abound in New Hampshire, in Vermont, and in every section of the globe where there are high hills, deep dells, forests and "pockets" that hold water throughout a greater part of the year.

The article to which reference is made designates this deposit as leaf mold, although as a matter of fact, decayed leaves form but a small part of it. The house of Peter Henderson calls it "natural humus," which is probably more nearly correct, as it is more descriptive of the nature of the deposit.

Fertile soil is composed of decayed stone and decayed vegetable matter. The decayed vegetable matter may be that of leaves, grasses, twigs or any similar substance. Any vegetable thing that grows will, when sufficiently disintegrated by decay, increase the fertility of the soil with which it is incorporated.

These deposits of mold, natural humus, have been collected through the ages and increased by the slow processes of nature. They contain not only decayed vegetation, but the fine particles of fertility that have been washed down from the uplands by melting snows, showers and spring freshets. They contain also the decayed bodies of small animals, snakes and other reptiles; of birds and flies and other small things that have perished in these bogs and meadows and become a part of the mass that we know as natural humus.

At first sight it might be said that the bodies of flies, snakes, birds and small animals that might perish in these lowlands would be of small consequence, but when one stops to consider what the aggregate would amount to in the course of a million years, the importance of it, and the probability of it, becomes greatly increased.

This writer has made an exhaustive and critical study of this subject for the past ten years, and he has learned that these facts are well known to a considerable number of scientific men and to a few practical farmers; but the fertilizer trust has done its utmost to discourage and deter the broadcasting of this information, knowing full well that farmers and gardeners would cease to pay exorbitant prices for "chemicals," 50 per cent of which is inert and worthless and the remaining 50 per cent of doubtful value, if they could mine and easily prepare a substance of greater value that could be found in ample quantity upon their own lands or within easy hauling distance.

The only unusual feature about the deposit found in Kingsboro is that Mr. Grant has the unusual habit of thinking about what he reads and what he sees with his own eyes. He simply put the two together and found that the result was of value to him.

If any of your readers are interested sufficiently to look into the matter, they might read the book by Professor Albert E. Wilkinson of the New York State College of Agriculture, published by the Orange Judd Company, "Muck Crops," Professor Wilkinson calls these deposits muck. Natural humus and muck are practically identical.

The Alton Humus Company of New York City has sold thousands of tons of this matter. Its product is mined in New Jersey. There is a firm in New York selling a substance in cans of one-pound capacity, the chief part of which is natural humus, at fifty cents a can. The cans have a pretty label which appeals to women who have flower plants in their homes and gardens. Your Maine farmer may have the same or a better article by digging the humus out of his meadow and then inoculating it with bacterial life by incorporating a small quantity of animal manure, decaying meat, fish or any substance carrying bacteria.

The raw humus has every essential of fertility except bacterial life. This may be introduced by incorporating a small quantity of fertile garden soil with the raw humus. The bacteria multiply with great rapidity when subjected to the natural heat of the sun and ample moisture. The great number of bacteria to be found in fertile soil under right conditions of heat and moisture may be best understood when one realizes that analysis has revealed no less than forty million is a single spoonful of earth.

A perfect soil is composed of decayed stone and decayed vegetable matter plus bacterial life. The average farm in Maine and New Hampshire has sufficient decayed stone in the soil; the bogs and meadows have deposits of natural humus (decayed vegetable matter) and the bacterial life is easily introduced. And there, Mr. Editor, in short form, is the story of what has been tried and is being tried by European farmers for a thousand years for the very good reason that animal manures and chemicals were beyond their reach and they were forced to study and experiment with the things Nature supplied. —Frank E. Mitchell.

Is it a Furnace?

NO! For it requires no basement—and fits into the living room.

SUNBEAM
CABINET HEATER

With this new kind of heater, every room is warm and livable, too.

The Sunbeam Cabinet Heater is made in two finishes, Olive Green and Grained Walnut, and in two sizes, the Standard and the Junior. The Olive Green finish blends harmoniously with the decorating scheme of any room in which it is placed. The Grained Walnut finish successfully meets the demand for a Sunbeam that resembles the other pieces of furniture in the home.

We have a Sunbeam on our floors. Walnut finish, no blacking. A cloth cleans perfectly. A mild, healthful, even heat at all times. Call at our store and see this beautiful heater.
